

More on the Irish War of Independence

The Grange Book contains a number of articles about Ireland's fight for freedom, as follows:

CLICK on selection to read.

*The Grange Ambush*

*Bravery, Brutality and Death at Caherguillamore*

*Martin O'Dwyer's Recollections*

*Seoirse George Clancy – Mayor of Limerick*

The above articles were researched and assembled with due diligence, so as to render the accounts evidence-based and accurate as possible.

However, much has been written about the struggles and the individual engagements of war that took place. Inevitably, discrepancies occurred. This is understandable, as much was recorded a long time after the events - in particular, the statements of witnesses.

And so, it is always wise to read as many accounts as possible, in order to distil one's thinking on an aspect of any matter.

With this in mind, a number of pieces written and published by Michael Barry are referenced here, and the reader may wish to peruse these. It should be said that Michael has a great interest in the Grange Ambush, as his family home in Lower Grange played a huge role in the battle. He also has a great interest in the murder of Seoirse Clancy, Mayor of Limerick, as Seoirse's home was but a couple of hundred yards from what was to become the Barry home, as mentioned.

The accounts assembled by Michael may be seen at the following web addresses:

The lead-up to the Grange Ambush:

<https://michealdebarra.com/2015/11/12/a-little-bit-of-history-part-2/>

The Grange Ambush:

<https://michealdebarra.com/2016/02/12/hx-08-november-1920/>

The search for guns during the war of independence in our locality:

<https://michealdebarra.com/2016/02/04/hx-1919-1921/>

The assassination of George Clancy & the link to the present George Clancy

<https://michealdebarra.com/2015/10/15/a-little-bit-of-history-part-1/>